Perched on a ridge above Pebble Beach's famed 17-Mile Drive, this Mediterranean-style home offers panoramic views of the California coast, from Big Sur to Cypress Point and Santa Cruz. Completed in 2007, the residence is less than four miles to Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The living room offers views.

The interiors feature hand-cut French limestone flooring laid in herringbone and Versailles patterns, French limestone fireplaces, Venetian-plaster walls, and antique glass windows. On the main level, the formal entry boasts a hand-painted dome ceiling. The north side of the home contains the family rooms and guest suites, while the south side of the house has the master suite, a private library, and a music room with filigree gold-leafed iron gates.

The open kitchen.

On the two-acre parcel is a guesthouse and tiered European-style gardens with olive, lemon, and cypress trees, as well as lavender and roses. There's also a spacious courtyard with an outdoor fireplace and a pizza oven.
